MEMORANDUM FOR: Executive Assistant to the Director

Chuck:

STAT

[redacted] called Mr. O'Boyle about his letter to the Director requesting information about the article on CIA which appeared in "American Education." When it was explained to him that the article referred to the LDX System which is managed by the National Communications System Staff, Mr. O'Boyle said that he was aware of the LDX System but he thought that perhaps we had something else new and different. Dick assured him this was not the case and Mr. O'Boyle seemed perfectly satisfied--in fact, he seemed rather pleased that the matter could be dropped so easily. Incidentally, in his letter he referred to a transmitter which allows an untrained operator to encipher and transmit a document at more than "six minutes per page."

The article states "six pages per minute."
